Incidents During the Slaughter er Responsible for Near-The grievous-looking persons who refused to laugh at the bes show in Detroit last night were Highlanders. Champions' Slaughter.

UNDOING OF HIGHLANDERS

After playing on the hard Chicago field the soft sand of Detroit got Elberfeld uncertain on his feet, and twice he fell after making beau-

Hurst, Kist Elberfeld and Hoffman. Hurst had enemies because he decided a close same against Detroit in 1882: Elberfeld because he used to play great ball here and quit; Hoffman because he hit a foul ball last year which broke through the screen and broke a reporter's nose.

New York had several chances to win, but the wallop was missing

PNEUMATIC BALL CAUSED

The Detroit bats also seemed to freeze to his curves.

The Highlanders need a set of those phony balls. They would come from heart disease the rest of his in handy in a pinch.

When Donovan tried to sneak a cripple over on Hoffman and Danny whaled it into the daisles for three bases, Armour actually grew angry. Two bases on balls, a doubtful error and three successive three-base bits best the Highlanders.

It was not hard luck.

There is no rest for a member of Griffish's club. At night they dreum of pennants freezoed with small bunches of prize money, only to wake up, don their uniforms and have their hopes blasted.

One day they are led to believe themselves champions, and the very next something comes up to convide them that they are dubs. Yours truly, therefore, will make no more success on who will land the tag. Already we have picked both New York and Chi-who will land the rag. Already we have pickel both New York and Chicago, and it raight be better to let it cago with equal case, and then Detroit to be it the least surprising to see Cleveland bob up, cop the coin and, but the newspaper handscappers in group both value.
